Congress Runs Washington But Citizens Object

Capital City Calls For Home Rule

By ARTHUR L. EDSON
WASHINGTON—(AP)—The nation's voters may not have thought much about it at the time, but last week they elected Washington's city council.

For, among many other things, that's what Congress is: city council for 300,000 voteless people who live in the District of Columbia.

Incidents Mentioned
A lot of citizens living here object to this, and they're busy trying to convince Congress that it should give up the job.

Advocates of home rule have put out a news release in which they say:

It costs $80,000 a day to run Congress. So Congress should be fretting over something more important than how to regulate prices in local barber shops.

The home rulers dredged up a few dates to bolster their point. On Aug. 14, U. S. forces in

Bungling Of Detroit Ballots Investigated; Williams Now Ahead

DETROIT — (AP) — Democratic Gov. G. Mennen Williams bounced back into a 676-vote lead today in his bid for reelection as straggling figures from county canvassing boards again reversed the semi-official leader.

It was the sixth time the lead changed hands as Williams battled two-term former Republican Governor Harry F. Kelly through a muddled mix-up of Michigan ballot-counting.

County Totals Change
Seven Michigan counties reported changes in their total vote for governor today as official canvassers neared the finish of a fast recheck of original unofficial returns in their precincts.

With six of the state's 83 counties not fully finished with their official canvasses, the count at 1 p. m. (EST) today stood:

Williams (D) 934,960
Kelly (R) 934,284

These totals included a 781-vote gain for Williams, uncovered in Macomb county, a 100-vote correction in favor of Williams in a Kent county review, a 64-vote gain for Williams in Genesee county's partially finished canvass and a 54-vote increase for Williams in the Ingham county vote which now is officially complete.

Corrected mistakes in other counties had a part, too, in wiping out a 307-vote lead Kelly held as recently as this morning.

Mixed With Oleo
The most significant of today's revisions reported by canvassing boards came from Macomb county where officials had been wondering what they could do about an erroneous figure they knew existed in returns reported from precinct 6 in Warren township.

It was solved today when Eugene Haight, a Republican and a house painter, came forward as chairman of the election board for precinct 6 and straightened out the error to the satisfaction of the county canvassers.

The Warren township mistake, in which the election board's report from precinct 6 came unstapled and was put together wrong, originally showed the governor vote as the precinct's tally on the oleomargarine referendum issue.

The error was explained, from pencilled notes, in testimony today to the Macomb county canvassing board by Eugene Haight, chairman of the election board of precinct 6.

Williams' lead, however, is by no means conclusive. Still to be heard from are official county canvasses in seven Michigan counties among the state's most populous. Rechecking of the vote

Allied Forces Link Up Solid Defense Line

Leathernecks Push Through Icy Hills

(By The Associated Press)

SEOUL—(AP)—A strong column of U. S. Marines advanced 5½ miles unopposed today through icy hills toward prized Changjin reservoir.

The cautious push carried the Marines to within four miles of their goal. Defense of the reservoir, facing the center of the North Korean front, was believed to be a major reason for the belated entrance of Chinese Communists into the war.

Attack In Snowstorm
To the south the Third Division, brought to full strength by Korean and Puerto Rican elements, linked up with the South Korean Eighth Division to form a solid United Nations defense line across the narrow waist of the Korean peninsula.

Fighting flared at both extremes of the battlefield. North Koreans guarding the approaches to the Soviet border attacked in force on the east coast Monday under cover of a blinding snowstorm. The Red spearhead battalion was led by tanks and self-propelled guns. It pushed across the Orongchon river, about 90 miles from the Soviet border, threatening to outflank a South Korean regiment.

Near the west coast, U. S. First Cavalry Division units advanced a mile and one-half. That carried them halfway to the walled town of Yongbyon. Patrols reached the walls but did not enter the town.

Cavalry Stopped
Heavy Communist resistance stopped other First Cavalry troops near Won, eight miles southeast of Yongbyon.

And five miles south of Won, an estimated three regiments of Chinese Reds smashed a two-mile dent in lines of the South Korean Sixth Division. Allied fighter-bombers halted this drive, killing about 1,000 Reds in a blazing attack two miles south of Kunu, The

Armed Germany Up For Debate
By ERNEST AGNEW
LONDON — (AP)—Atlantic pact deputies called today for a definite decision by Christmas on how western Germany is to be brought into the western European defense system.

The deputies, opening sessions here, faced three big problems: 1. To allow French fears that the use of Germans in a combined army would provide the basis for a future independent German army.

2. To try to salvage parts of French Premier Rene Pleven's plan for west European defense.

3. Exactly what contribution the Germans should make toward that defense.

Opposed by many of the deputies, the French plan calls for organization of a supra-national European defense council to control the combined west European army, use of German troops only in small units and the pooling of war industries.

The United States and Britain do not want to delay raising of the European army until a defense council can be formed. They also want German forces of division size in the army.

The failure thus far to find an answer to any of these problems has delayed the appointment of a supreme commander for the defense army. London military sources say U. S. Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower is certain to get the post.

Home Fire Fatal To Six Children In Mining Town

GARRETT, Pa. — (AP)—Eight persons died in a series of fires in western Pennsylvania yesterday—six of them children who perished as flames destroyed a frame house in this little coal mining town.

Volunteer firemen battled smoke and flames for two hours in sub-freezing temperatures but were unable to rescue the six child victims of the Garrett fire.

Parents Helpless
Five of the children were sons and daughters of Harvey Lee, 40, a welder, and his wife, Stella, 37. They were Kay, 13, Darlene, 7, Danny, 5, Laverne, 3, and Linda Sue, 2.

The other victim was Clarence Lee, 15, brother of Mrs. Lee, whose maiden name was the same as that of her husband. Clarence was spending the night at his sister's house.

Mr. and Mrs. Lee were out shopping when the fire broke out. When they learned of the blaze, they rushed home and stood helplessly by as firemen vainly tried to enter the flaming house.

Firemen said the blaze apparently was started by a kitchen coal stove. The bodies of the children were found later in their second floor bedrooms.

Baby Dies In Crib
Another child, eight-month-old James Stover, burned to death in his crib in a farm house near Oil City, Pa. Firemen said the parents, Mr. and Mrs. Lester Stover, told them the crib apparently was set ablaze by an open heating stove.

The eighth fire victim was Mrs. Alton Phillips, 50 who perished in a fire that destroyed her home at Sharon, Pa. Mrs. Phillips was alone when the fire started of an undetermined cause.

Timken Wage Boost Accepted By Union
CANTON, O. — (AP)—An offer by the Timken Roller Bearing Co. to boost wages 10 per cent has been accepted by CIO United Steelworkers at four plants in Ohio.

I. W. Abel, USW district manager here, said increases would bring the average pay to about $1.87 an hour.

The four plants—here and at Columbus, Mount Vernon and Zanesville—employ some 13,000 persons.

Vast Program Drafted For U. S. Foreign Aid Running Into Billions

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

WASHINGTON—(AP)—A blueprint for a vast new American foreign aid program, including economic help to western Europe beyond the scheduled end of the Marshall plan, was made public by the administration last night.

It probably will form the basis for President Truman's foreign economic recommendation to the new Congress next year.

Gray Makes Report
The chief executive made public a global survey of economic prospects and American aid in the light of the Communist threat and the western rearmament program.

The survey calls for far-reaching development in American policy to provide help running into billions of dollars over the next few years—perhaps $8, 000,000,000 or more.

Mr. Truman released the report, prepared by former secretary of Army Gordon Gray, as a document deserving "the attention and study" of the American people.

But administration officials said there is no doubt that its main recommendation will largely shape the president's foreign economic proposal in his state of the union message to Congress in January.

This will pose squarely the issue of how long and how much the United States wants to give, or lend friendly nations to help them rearm and strengthen their political and economic life against the threat of Communism.

Rough Time Ahead
The administration had hard sledding getting funds from the present Congress to finance the third year of the Marshall plan for western European recovery.

There is every indication that it will have a tougher time with the new Congress in obtaining approval for an extension of help to Europe beyond the scheduled end of the Marshall plan on June 30, 1952.

The attack of the enlarged Republican opposition may not be, however, so much on the point of furnishing some assistance as on the related issues of how much and under what conditions.

GOP National Chairman Guy G. Gabrielson, while he did not mention foreign aid specifically, said in a weekend statement that the administration is pursuing a "dangerous course" in foreign policy.

He again called on Mr. Truman to drop Secretary of State Acheson from the cabinet.

Mr. Truman said that he thought the Gray report would prove useful to Congress and to the administration in formulating plans to deal with present and future world conditions. He made no reference to the controversial nature of some of the recommendations.

Julia Marlowe Taken By Death
NEW YORK—(AP)—Julia Marlowe, one of the greatest Shakespearean actresses of all time, died yesterday at the age of 85.

With her husband, the late E. H. Southern, she made up one of the most famous acting partnerships in the history of the American stage. Southern died in 1933 at the age of 73.

Miss Marlowe died after a brief illness at the Plaza hotel on Central Park, her home in New York for the last 30 years.

Both she and her husband retired in 1924.

Miss Marlowe was born Sarah Frances Frost in Cumberland, England, and was taken to Kansas as a child by her parents. She later adopted Julia Marlowe as her stage name. Her first stage appearance was at the age of 11 in a juvenile production of "H. M. S. Pinafore," in which she sang a small part as a sailor.

She made her New York debut in 1887 as a star in "Ingomar." She was an instant success.

After an unsuccessful first marriage, she teamed up with Southern in a stage partnership and married him in 1911.

Her most famous roles were Juliet, Rosalind in "As You Like It," and Viola in "Twelfth Night."

Chinese Communists Given Chance To Quit
By STANLEY JOHNSON
LAKE SUCCESS — (AP)—The United Nations mounted a three-pronged diplomatic offensive today, seeking to neutralize Communist China and to prevent the Korean campaign from exploding into World War III.

On the evening of the departure from Peking of a Red delegation to the security council, diplomats moved swiftly to keep the war localized.

Basic strategy was to reassure Chinese Communist leaders that U. N. forces had no designs on their territory, would not interfere with China's supply of electric power from North Korean dams and would build a united, democratic, independent Korea which would present no threat to China.

This was combined with a clear warning, however, that continued Red Chinese intervention in Korea would lead to drastic action.

As though to point up these efforts, a spokesman at Gen. MacArthur's Tokyo headquarters announced that the current Allied push toward the Yalu river is just a "limited offensive."

Informed observers here considered this indicated that the U. N. military command also was trending cautiously, hoping to win a decisive victory over the North Koreans while giving the Chinese an opportunity to withdraw with a minimum loss of face.

Australia's James Pimlott, a member of the seven-nation Korean commission, flew to Korea to be available, with other commission members, in case Peking wanted to negotiate a border settlement.

There was no indication that the Chinese Reds had made any approaches in this direction, but Pimlott's flight was regarded here as further evidence of U. N.

determination to leave no door unclosed in an attempt to solve the question peacefully.

Icy Roads Kill 13 In Michigan
(By The Associated Press)

Thirteen persons were killed on Michigan's icy roads during the weekend and a plane wreck and two other mishaps brought the state's accidental death toll to at least 16.

The traffic victims included well-known state official Stuart B. White and three members of a Beloit, O., family.

White, Niles attorney and Republican member of the Michigan Public Service commission, was killed Friday night when his car skidded on a patch of ice on M-60 near Union City. The auto went off the road and struck a tree.

Mr. and Mrs. David R. Craig of Beloit and their two-year-old daughter, Linda, were injured fatally when their car skidded on icy pavement and hit an oncoming truck trailer on US-127 between Jackson and Lansing Saturday.

The Craigs were heading north to hunt deer.

Slippery pavements also were believed responsible in the deaths of 26-year-old Rhoda Deutsch of East Lansing and Pte. Reginald Hart, 19, of Fort Custer.

Miss Deutsch, a radio script writer for radio station WJIM in Lansing, was killed Friday night when the car in which she was riding on US-16 near Brighton went off the pavement into a ditch.

Hunters Settle In Deer Camps

(By The Associated Press)

Perhaps half of Michigan's 400,000 deer hunters were already in camp today (Monday), state authorities estimated.

The big trek to the north country started Friday evening, even though the 16-day season does not begin until dawn Wednesday.

Despite unfavorable driving conditions because of snow and ice, highways and the state ferries at the Straits of Mackinac carried a heavy load of deer hunters.

At the Straits, the waiting line was longest Sunday night, when cars had to wait up to two hours to get aboard the rapidly shuttling ferries.

The line had diminished considerably by this morning, the state highway department reported.

The timely snow cheered deer hunters universally for both esthetic and utilitarian reasons.

A deer camp is not the same without snow decorating the surrounding forest.

In addition, snow makes the deer tracks visible and hunters will have an easier time finding where the deer are.

Jealous Spouse Kills Wife, 21, In Detroit Bar

DETROIT — (AP) — A jealous young husband kept today as he told police he killed his estranged wife in a crowded bar because "she had too many boy friends."

Pretty, 21-year-old Mrs. Mary V. Smith was shot down last night while sitting in the Cavalade Inn near suburban Plymouth with a girl friend.

Police said her 22-year-old husband, Earl, strode into the tavern and calmly fired a double-barreled shotgun from a distance of four feet.

Lt. Francis Mc Cahill of the Wayne county sheriff's department said a first degree murder warrant would be sought.

More than 50 persons saw the shooting, and many ran panicked into the street. Two shots were into Mrs. Smith's side.

One man sitting near the victim knocked the gun out of Smith's hand, and three others dragged him into a corner. They said he surrendered and became hysterical.

More Snow Predicted For Upstate Michigan; Temperatures Drop
(By The Associated Press)

Wide reaches of upstate Michigan were all but snowbound today—and more snow is forecast for them tonight and tomorrow.

Sub-freezing overnight temperatures again are forecast.

Nine of the state's 13 traffic fatalities over the weekend were attributed directly to icy highways.

Thousands of deer hunters motoring to Upper Peninsula hunting grounds caused traffic jams Sunday ranging from three to four miles in length near Mackinaw City, a ferry terminal for the Straits of Mackinac. Some highways in the area were limited to one-lane traffic by snow more than 18 inches deep.

Blustery winds which swept three inches of snow over the Sault Ste. Marie area Saturday and Sunday had subsided today.

Spared By Whistle
MUSKEGON — (AP) — W. W. Ward of Muskegon heard a train whistle Sunday and stopped—but not in time. The bumper was ripped from the front of his car by a passing Chesapeake and Ohio freight train.

Neither Ward nor six passengers in the auto was hurt.

Kidnaping Of Girl For $20,000 Ransom Stuns Santa Fe, N. M.

SANTA FE, N. M. — (AP)—A suicide guard kept watch all night over 43-year-old Nancy Campbell—Yale-trained woman doctor charged with kidnaping a rich contractor's nine-year-old daughter.

Dr. Campbell—dressed in men's clothes—was caught red-handed Saturday night when she reached for $20,000 ransom cash and 30 hidden FBI agents and police rushed her in the darkness.

"I'm only a go-between," they said she shouted as they hurried into her, thinking she was a man.

Groggy And Chilled
But in her yellow convertible only a few feet away they found her bedraggled victim—blonde Linda Stamm. The little girl was groggy from a dose of sleeping medicine and chilled from exposure to the 9-degree above zero temperature, but otherwise unharmed.

Later, after they found two more ransom notes and a 25-caliber pistol in the woman's pockets, the FBI said she admitted luring the child away Friday from the Stamm's ranch estate in the wooded outskirts of Santa Fe.

Dr. Campbell, who has a four-year-old adopted son, Rufus, said she was beset with debts and unpaid bills and worried about her elderly parents, both injured in an auto crash last month.

She was formally charged with kidnaping last night and held under $25,000 bond. If convicted, she would face from five years in prison to death in the electric chair under New Mexico's severe kidnap law.

Left In Old Cabin
Linda's mother, 32-year-old Mrs. Allen Stamm, was shocked to find the admitted kidnaper was the same respected woman's specialist who had delivered her second son, Craig Stamm, just two years ago.

But after her 30-hour ordeal she had little sympathy for Dr. Campbell.

"I hope she will never be free again to bring to others what she has brought to us in heartaches and worry," she said.

"It must not be allowed to happen again. . . . The mistreatment of an innocent child. . . . The leaving of a little girl to the mercy of winter."

Dr. Campbell said she had enticed Linda away from home by promising to take her to her mother—who was at a bridge party. Then she drugged the child at her office, wrapped her in a blanket and left her overnight in an abandoned ranch cabin.

Despite her admissions, personal and professional friends rallied to Dr. Campbell's defense, and said she must have been mentally deranged to have done such a thing.

No Break Sighted In Telephone Strike
NEW YORK — (AP)—Federal mediators, pleading for a settlement in the public's interest, said neither union nor management had budged an inch over the weekend in the partial coast-to-coast telephone strike.

New bargaining talks were set for today in the pay and contract dispute.

The CIO Communications Workers (CWA) planned new "hit-and-run" picketing to snarl long distance lines of the huge Bell system.

Federal Mediator Walter A. Magglo said the two major units—CWA division 6 and Bell's Western Electric Co.—still were far apart in the weekend talks.

He said the union wants a 15-cents hourly raise, while the company's best offer is 11½ cents. Present wages average from $1.55 to $1.62 cents an hour. The union also insists on a one-year contract only, while the company wants a two-year pact with a 16-month wage reopening clause.

PICKETS RETURN
DETROIT — (AP)—A weekend lull in Michigan's telephone lull in Michigan's telephone strike ended when pickets showed up early today at exchanges in Jackson, Hillsdale and Royal Oak.

A Michigan Bell Telephone Co. spokesman said the picket lines formed before any non-supervisory workers were scheduled for duty.

He said supervisory employees were on hand to take care of the manual operations at Hillsdale and the dial system in the other two offices if the other workers stayed out.

Brief hit-run workouts in various state offices have hampered telephone operations in Michigan and across the nation since Thursday morning.

Cold Snap Delays Ore Loading At All Ports

Wintertime temperatures today held the Upper Lakes in their grip, freezing iron ore in the cars and delaying the loading of vitally-needed supplies to the nation's steel industry.

At Escanaba temperatures dipped to 12 degrees last night and marked the start of C. & N. W. ore docks steam plant operations to keep the ore moving. As early as Thursday last week the first water thawing of ore on the docks was begun.

The necessity for steaming slow the loadings here by as much as one and two days.

Engines Sent To Scrapheap

DSS&A Disposes Of 6 Old Locomotives

MARQUETTE, Mich. — Last week the Duluth, South Shore & Atlantic Railroad Company sent a "funeral train" to Duluth, Minn.

The train was made up of six old locomotives, which the South Shore sent to the scrap heap. They were sold to scrap dealers in Duluth.

Altogether, they made up a consignment of 750 tons of scrap iron. They were lined up and coupled together, and hauled to Duluth by one of the South Shore's new Diesels.

Tragic Accident Recalled
Included in the six old "iron horses" were Locomotives 712, 713 and 715, of the F-5 class, which had been used in freight service more than 30 years.

Also included were Locomotives 702, 104 and 711 of the F-3 class. No. 702 and 704 were used in freight service and 704 was used most of the time in passenger service between Calumet and Marquette.

Locomotive 704 was the one which plunged into the Michigamme river, near Michigamme, some years ago, an accident, in which the late Charles W. Richardson, of Marquette, veteran South Shore engineer, was killed.

Smaller Nets Will Be Tried

Wisconsin To Make Test With Herring

MADISON, Wis.—The conservation commission decided late Friday to see whether two and three-eighths inch gill nets will catch herring and let chubs alone in northern Green Bay waters.

The commission went along with a request from Assemblyman-elect Frank Grass to let commercial fishermen try out the small size nets with government observers aboard.

Commercial fishermen complained a fine catch of herring was not being harvested because they had to use larger nets. Commission members who worried that chubs may end up in the nets, decided on a compromise trial run.

The commission spent most of the day approving land purchases totaling $21,313 for 1,524 acres. More than half the amount was land acquisition for the Black River Falls unit of the central Wisconsin conservation area.

Commissioners also decided to double Wisconsin's navy by approving purchase of a 55-foot patrol boat for Lake Superior for $17,000. The conservation department now has a patrol boat for Lake Michigan waters. The round-bottomed craft can make up to 11 and a half knots and has an air lift for inspecting nets.

Ice fishing brought out two complaints. Fox Lake residents wanted the lake closed to ice fishing of game fish, and a Beaver Dam group wanted the game fish season extended during the season.

The commission took no action on either request. But Edward Schneberger, head of the fisheries division, said he could ask for an emergency order permitting game fishing on Beaver Dam lake if there was a heavy freeze and fish began dying in large numbers from lack of oxygen.

Hunters Arriving In Rapid River

Altar Society
The Altar society of St. Charles church will meet Wednesday evening at 8 in the parish hall for its monthly session. The business meeting will be followed by a work session devoted to making cancer dressings. A member of the Red Cross staff in Escanaba will be present with material and to give instructions on making the dressings. Each one attending is requested to take along a needle and thread.

Supervisors Of U. P. Will Meet

Convene On Dec. 9 In Escanaba

The Upper Peninsula Association of Supervisors, a division of the state organization, will meet in Escanaba Dec. 9, it was announced today in a letter received by Harold Gustafson of Ensign, chairman of the Delta county board of supervisors.

The meeting in Escanaba will be held starting at 9 a. m. Saturday, Dec. 9, in the Ludington hotel.

In the notice of the meeting received by Gustafson it was stated that the conference will be held for the purpose of adopting resolutions to be presented at the annual meeting of the State Association of Supervisors which will be held in January in Lansing.

At the U. P. meeting in Escanaba resolutions pertaining to new legislation affecting the counties will be presented.

It was pointed out that if the U. P. association is to serve the purposes for which it was organized, all counties of the U. P. are expected to be represented at the Escanaba meeting.

Expect Brisk Demand For Pulpwood In U. P.

With pulp and paper mills now running seven days a week and pulpwood inventories down about 35 per cent in the Lake States region, a busy winter is in prospect in the Upper Peninsula woods.

Mills are again competing for the pulpwood supply, and prices are now 50 cents per cord higher than they were after OPA controls were taken off in the early postwar period. The Mead corporation is paying $24.50 for rough spruce and $21.50 for balsam, delivered by trucks to its mills at Escanaba and Manistique. Railroad deliveries are quoted F. O. B. at $15.50 per cord less, or $23 on car for spruce and $20 for balsam.

Aspen In Demand
A few jobbers who happen to have a small amount of 100-inch peeled poplar or aspen on hand are now able to dispose of it at $17 per cord, delivered at the mill. The buying of rough aspen is expected to begin soon, with prices ranging from $11 to $11.50 per cord.

Demand for peeled aspen rose suddenly after peeling season ended in mid-August. As a result, a shortage looms, and indications are that more will be cut next spring.

The lowly aspen is finding greater use in the production of paper nowadays. The Mead corporation uses about 20 per cent of this short-fibered wood as filler in the making of paper at the Escanaba mill, and from 5 to 10 per cent at Manistique. A much greater percentage of poplar is used by the mills at Filer City, Green Bay and Tomahawk, Wis., who are using a semi-chemical process in the making of corrugated paperboard.

Competition for pulpwood is acute, W. H. Hildebrand of Escanaba, Mead corporation forester, reports. Some mills in the Lakes States region have extremely low inventories, but the Mead mills at Manistique and Escanaba are in a more fortunate position. In fact, they have been loaning some pulpwood to another paper company that has run into a shortage.

The Mead corporation's policy of acquiring pulpwood lands in the region is already beginning to pay dividends. Hildebrand stated, "A selective cutting program is being inaugurated on Mead lands this season with contracts awarded to jobbers at Hulbert, Newberry, Trenary and other timber holdings. The old Swedish forest plan of cutting alternate 66-foot wide strips is being tried out on some Mead lands whenever found practical."

"We are striving toward a goal where our timberlands will be able to produce at least one-fourth of our pulpwood needs," Hildebrand said.

Timber Getting Scarce
Carl J. Sawyer of the Sawyer-Stoll company, which deals extensively in forest products, also confirmed the report that pulpwood demand is booming, but he added a pessimistic note about timber supply.

"The supply of natural pulpwood is getting scarce," Sawyer said. "Many people are cutting immature stuff, and there cannot be any trees for tomorrow when they do that. On our lands we are cutting only the mature stuff."

With steel in short supply, the demand for posts and poles also has increased, Sawyer said. The railroads are also buying more ties and paying from 10 to 15 per cent more than last year.

Alaska Forests To Be Important

Prof. Dow Baxter Sees Opportunity

Alaska forests in the southeastern part of the territory will become the most important forests on the North American continent, according to a University of Michigan forester, Dow V. Baxter.

"There in Alaska we have the last chance in North America to practice forestry in a practically untouched area," Professor Baxter told the Alaskan Scientific Conference meeting in Washington Friday.

The area has not been scared by fire or blighted by fungi as have other forest areas in Alaska. This timber is not "locked up," Professor Baxter stated, but the U. S. Forest Service is seeking to prevent exploitation of the forests.

Baxter, who is professor of forest pathology in the University of Michigan School of Natural Resources, commended the work of the Forest Service in Alaska for their efforts to develop pulp wood industries in the area without injuring the salmon industry which depends on the same rivers forest industries would use.

Baxter visited several months ago in Escanaba with W. H. Hildebrand, forester of the Mead corporation. Baxter and Hildebrand went on a research expedition to Alaska together about fifteen years ago.

Multitude Of Election Errors Proved Need For Voting Machines

THE election of Michigan's governor for the next two years may have been settled by those who failed to vote, rather than by the nearly 2,000,000 people who did cast their votes in last Tuesday's general election.

The winner in the gubernatorial race is still in doubt and probably will not be settled for weeks to come. The lead has changed several times in the past several days as new election errors are discovered in the various counties.

The vote in last week's election was unusually heavy as a result of a vigorous campaign in every community. But there still were thousands of voters who neglected to go to the polls because they regarded their vote as unimportant. These people may now realize just how important their vote really is.

Never before in Michigan election history has such a wave of election errors, tabulation mistakes, voting irregularities, etc., been revealed as in this year's election. The final result of the governorship contest will be determined by the correction of these errors.

Do all these errors mean that the election boards in those precincts were more careless this year than usual? We doubt it. The errors simply are of greater importance this year because of the unprecedented closeness of the governorship contest. The errors have been there all the time, in every election, but the errors are less important when the election is not close.

The disclosure of these many errors, including some caused by outright stupidity, shows the true value of voting machines. There simply is no such thing as a tabulation error on a voting machine. Each vote is recorded immediately and the correct, indisputable total is available as soon as the polls are closed.

Escanaba officials were on the right track when they proposed the purchase of voting machines last year. It was a mistake to abandon the plan. Some day every vote in Michigan will be recorded by voting machines, just as they are now in the state of New York. Only when that time comes will we eliminate the confusion and gross errors in the tabulation of democracy's greatest heritage.

Emergency Rules Won't Harm Us

BEFORE our armed forces began pushing the North Koreans back toward the Manchurian border, it was realized that the greatest test of American mettle would come when victory seemed assured and the Communist threat reduced.

Then would come the usual cries to ease restrictions imposed by the emergency, the usual demand to "get the boys home by Christmas."

Sure enough, we were beginning to hear just that sort of talk after Allied armies captured Pyongyang and set out for the remnants of the North Korean forces.

The intervention of Communist China silenced that talk. Whether China has a limited aim, as the most seasoned observers are saying, or wants to push us out of Korea, her stepping into the war will make it far easier to exact sacrifices from the American people.

But we ought to appreciate here and now that the kind of sacrifices we probably will be called upon to make in the next year or so will neither crush our liberties nor drastically reduce our booming standard of living.

The economic experts put their finger on the most significant facts in the 1951 picture: Production in many key lines of consumer goods will be cut below the frequently record 1950 levels to allow for armament output; but almost without exception that reduced production will still be better than any other year in U. S. history except 1950.

Thus, under present arms plans, we're hardly in for a starvation diet. We'll still be getting heavy output of automobiles, refrigerators, washing machines and many other household appliances. Our larders will be better stocked than ever. In the clothing field, we may have to accept some substitute materials, but otherwise output will be high.

Of course the prospect is dimmed a little by the likelihood that both prices and taxes will soar upward. Both individual income levies and corporate taxes are due for another boost, though personal taxes aren't expected to rise above World War II peaks.

Yet, if anyone asked you if you'd feel badly off if things were just a little worse than in 1949, the chances are you'd say no. So, unless the Chinese are leading us to World War III, none of us need need 1951 as if we were heading for a Spartan life patterned on depression models. We'll still be fat, for all our "sacrifices."

Recipe For Progress In Coal Mining

A group of 20 Belgian coal mining men recently came to this country to examine the American coal industry, and to learn how they might better their own practices and so protect their markets. A speaker for the National Coal Association told them that Belgian management must speed mechanization, labor must be stimulated to greater efficiency, and both must realize the necessity of substantially increasing production per man-day.

Then he said, "In America, mines are ready to meet any production demands because labor is strong and capital is strong. If one dies, so does the other. In every free-enterprise nation, it is vital that both labor and capital remain free and healthy."

That is the basic recipe for creating a strong and progressive industry in any field of enterprise. It is true that coal labor and capital have fought many bitter battles. Yet they have kept their freedom and they have made great strides together. The American mines are so far the most productive in the world—and, as a result, the American miner receives a wage that would seem like riches abroad. And coal is ready to meet any conceivable demand for the product.

Europeans come to this country to learn why American industry is so superior to their own. They gather much technical knowledge, which is important. But the biggest thing they can learn is that free enterprise can always outperform regimented enterprise.

Smoking Dames

Now it used to be that smoking was a thing for men alone, and that ashes on the carpets caused the women folks to moan. But in time it was the fashion of the female suffragette, to include in her campaign the right to smoke a cigarette. And 'twas then that men became aware, in spite of women's rights, they must still supply the cigarettes and give the gals their lights.

They suppose that smoking ladies would their cigarettes provide, but it soon became apparent that their own they must divide. Like the man who takes his lady out to dine at some cafe—it's a cinch that after dinner she'll be always sure to say: "May I have a cigarette and will you light it for me, please?"—then he's got to have the stuff so she can take her smoking ease.

He resents no female smoking but he thinks it is a curse, that with all the many kinds of junk she has inside her purse, she will never bring along the cigarettes she likes to smoke, and must bum them off the nearest man and treat it as a joke. For if smoking rights are equal, men would like to make it known, that the women who expect to smoke, should bring along their own

Merry-Go-Round Let the Cobbler Stick To His Last

By DREW PEARSON
WASHINGTON — Despite the slim Democratic margin in the new Congress, a little personal friction cropped up between the president and his congressional leaders one day after election over the question of calling Congress back before Thanksgiving.

Vice President Barkley even went so far as to serve notice that he would ignore any early call of Congress and stay home. This notice was served on the president through Senate Secretary Les Biffle, who talked to Barkley at his home in Paducah, Ky., then to Truman on the presidential yacht Williamsburg.

Other Senate leaders—Majority Leader Scott Lucas of Illinois and Republican Leader Ken Wherry of Nebraska—also passed word through Biffle that they were dead set against an early session. This could be the beginning of a serious feud between the president and Congress.

The president, however, was noncommittal. All he told Biffle was that he wanted to talk the matter over personally with the leaders before making his decision.

The message which Barkley sent was that he needed a vacation and intended to take it, no matter what Truman decided. The vice president complained that he was worn out from his whirlwind campaign tour, which included three to five speeches daily and a phenomenal windup of 14 speeches on the day before election.

Wherry, phoning Biffle from his home in Pawnee City, Neb., also reported that he expected to take a vacation. Another anxious call came from Sen. Dennis Chavez, New Mexico Democrat, who said he was planning a trip through Central America to inspect the Pan-American highway and didn't want Congress called back early.

SUPREME COURT RESIGNATION?
President Truman and Chief Justice Fred Vinson talked like Dutch uncles to restless Justice William O. Douglas the other day when he told them he wanted to resign from the supreme court.

Vinson, who feels keenly about the court's prestige, and also has a high regard for the sharp and original mind of Douglas, said severely, "I think it would be improper for you to resign and go into law for at least two years."

Then, in a kindlier vein, the owl-eyed Kentuckian added: "Besides Bill, the court really needs your point of view. The whole country would suffer if you resigned."

When Justice Douglas went to the White House, Mr. Truman was tipped off in advance by the chief justice that Douglas wanted to resign. So the president was ready for him.

"The biggest problem I have is to get good people to come into Washington," he told Douglas. "It's pretty discouraging. If you resigned, my job would be a lot harder. We need you on the court."

Note—Columbia university has sounded out Douglas about becoming General Eisenhower's successor after January 1. Douglas has also toyed with the idea of going into private law practice on his own.

RUSSIAN JETS
Mussian MIG-15 jets are playing a deadly game of cat-and-mouse across the Manchurian border.

Knowing that Manchuria is out-of-bounds for Americans, Red pilots climb to dizzy altitudes, carefully staying inside Chinese territory—then pounce upon unsuspecting American patrols just across the border. In the same drive, the Russian jets swoop back to the safety of Manchuria before American pilots can give chase.

Under strict orders not to cross the Manchurian boundary, the Americans try to lure the marauding jets into their gun-sights, but seldom get more than a few seconds crack at them.

Until recently, American pilots were ordered not to fly within 30 miles of Manchuria. This was reduced to three miles, as the United Nations forces thrust northward. However, the order was desisted entirely last week, and our pilots are permitted to chase enemy jets right up to the border—though not one inch across it.

THE PARTS OF SPEECH

The Conjunction

The conjunction is a JOINING WORD. It connects or joins words, groups of words or parts of a sentence. There are no conjunctions in this sentence:

William Ruth were poor happy.

Such a sentence is meaningless. It will make sense, however, if joining words are used, thus:

William AND Ruth were poor BUT happy.

Note how indispensable the conjunctions are in the following sentences:

Will you study French OR Spanish?

He will succeed, FOR he has talent.

He will go UNLESS it rains.

Choose EITHER this OR that.

I want NEITHER this NOR that.

The principal conjunctions are:

Also, although, and, as, because, both, but, either, except, for, however, if, lest, neither nevertheless nor, notwithstanding, only, or, provided, save, seeing, since, so, still, than, that, then, therefore, though, unless, what, when, whereas, whereat, whereby, wherever, wherefore, wherein, whereof, whereupon, whenever, whether, while, without, yet.

Today's article is the eighth and last in the series on the parts of speech. (Note: Mr. Colby's articles on the parts of speech are summarized in his leaflet, C-14. For a copy, send 10 cents in coin to him, care of this paper, P. O. Box 99, Station G, New York 19, N. Y.)

Gainesville: A local paper states that "In 1894, Congress made Labor Day a national holiday." Is that correct?—E. B.

A. Not quite. In the United States there are no national holidays. The correct term is legal holidays.

Stratton: The word ventriloquist strikes me as a curious word. Will you please give its origin?—Mrs. R. D.

Rival Lama Chiefs Are Key Figures In Red Drive On Tibet

(By The Associated Press)

A pair of round-faced Chinese peasant boys are central figures in the Communist drive to swallow lofty Tibet, the last priest-ridden country in the world.

The first is the 16-year-old Dalai Lama, spiritual and temporal ruler of the four-million people of the Asiatic theocracy. His government has resisted Communist threats and he has openly bid for western help.

The second is the 13-year-old Panchen Lama, second in power in the country and considered by many Tibetans to hold equal spiritual authority. The boy—who lived in exile as a result of long rivalry with the Dalai Lama—was reported captured by Chinese Reds over a year ago. He has been used as an important propaganda voice by the Communists, who quote him as asking that they "liberate" Tibet.

Reincarnation of Buddha

Tibetans believe both boys are reincarnations of Buddha. The Dalai Lama is believed to be the 14th incarnate. According to believers in the Buddhist faith, when either a Dalai or Panchen Lama dies, the living soul of Buddha transfers to the body of a boy born on the instant of the old Lama's death. Then high church officials and the state oracles confer, deciding by signs and trances the logical area in which the new Lama will be discovered priests start out to search for the boy.

The 13th Dalai Lama died in 1933, aged 57. He had gained political ascendancy over the rival Panchen Lama, developed important pro-British ties and had dealt firmly with the Chinese who claimed suzerainty over the country although Tibet had acted for years with complete autonomy.

The search for his successor took years, but word finally leaked out that not one, but three candidates for succession had been turned up. Two were Tibetan boys. The third was a Mongolian peasant child named Linger Lamsu-tan-Chu who lived in a primitive cave-home in Koko Nor province, now absorbed by China.

Priests reported to their superior that the boy was easily identified. They showed Linger an assortment of articles, and the child reached out and grabbed the chopsticks and other things which had belonged to the old Dalai Lama—a certain sign.

According to tradition, when more than one candidate is found lots are drawn by the high Lamas for the final selection. At the time of the present Dalai Lama's enthronement in February, 1940, there were skeptics who said they believed the boy was then about four and one-half years old—not six as he should have been to receive the old Dalai Lama's soul—and that the selection of a Mongolian child, instead of a Tibetan, was a result of political negotiation by the Chinese, designed to better relations between the two nations. The lot-drawing was dispensed with, and the two unsuccessful candidates were called "living Buddhas" and that was the end of it.

'Holder of Thunderbolt'
The Mongolian boy was taken to Tibet and given rigid training by Buddhist priests. Then, dressed in golden robes and conical yellow hat, the little boy was helped into the golden throne and proclaimed "All High Lama, holder of the thunderbolt."

Lowell Thomas, Jr., who with his father traveled to Tibet two summers ago and was received by the Dalai Lama, describes the Dalai Lama in his forthcoming book, "Out Of This World," as "human, kind and gentle-mannered, and by no means a terrified puppet."

The boy has ruled through regents for the past 10 years. Thomas says that the Dalai Lama's first regent, Reting Rimpochi, was bribed into the service of the Chinese, abdicated and later died under mysterious circumstances. The present regent, he says, is Tokra, 73 years old, but vigorous and alert. Under the regent—who would be expected to serve until the Dalai Lama is 19—are three cabinets, the most important of which is the regent-appointed Kashag composed of three lay ministers and one monk. There is also a national assembly, composed of important officials and not elected, which meets on invitation of the Dalai Lama.

The old Panchen Lama—an exile for 13 years from Tibet—died in 1937 after spending years in Chinese monasteries. Less than a year after the enthronement of the Dalai Lama, word came out that the Panchen's successor had been located. He was a three-year-old Chinese boy named Tuteng Tuenchi, found in a peasant family in Yuensang, Sikang Province. Three years later he was enthroned with ceremonies rivaling those for the Dalai Lama.

Seized by Communists
But the Panchen Lama did not remain long in his Tibetan monastery of Tashi-Lhunpo near Shigatse. Eventually the Panchen Lama was forced into exile like his predecessor—back to his native China where he remained as a guest in Kumbum monastery. In September, 1949, the boy fell into Communist hands, according to reports, and soon afterwards the Red radios of Peking and Moscow quoted him as urging Tibetan liberation.

With Communist forces reported entering Tibet, word came that the Dalai Lama and his regent had fled. This was later denied. Observers believe that the Communists, if successful in taking over Tibet, would raise the young Panchen Lama to nominal authority, for Tibet is probably the most religious nation in the world and almost a quarter of her males are monks.

The whereabouts of the Panchen Lama has not been revealed by the Communists.

Shoe Sales Drop Due To Increased Prices

By SIGRID N. DUNCAN

Staff Correspondent of THE WALL STREET JOURNAL

CHICAGO—Retail shoe stores are greeting talk of still higher footwear prices with a fishy stare. Reason: Consumer resistance to present prices. In the past month retail shoe sales have dipped 10% to 15% below the like 1949 period.

Shoe manufacturers arrived here early for the 17th annual National Shoe Fair full of enthusiasm and talk of a third round of price increases since Korea. They've gone home with scuffed-up feelings. Retail buyers were polite enough about their tales of mounting leather costs, but they were overly impressed. There was no rush to buy. In fact, many retailer representatives said they were buying fewer shoes than last year, when the manufacturers were suffering a minor recession.

Elmer Nordstrom's Caution

Typical is this remark of Elmer Nordstrom, owner of Nordstrom's Shoe Store in Seattle: "I plan to buy 10% to 15% fewer units this year, but spend the same amount of money. If my customers have to pay $1 to $3 more for shoes, they'll probably buy one pair less in a year."

Adds a buyer for a large Detroit shoe store: "Under normal conditions we would now be ordering 10% more shoes because of increases in store facilities. But our initial order will be the same as last year, because of uncertainties and the possibility of price control."

A Jackson, Miss., buyer said he would buy the same number of units as last year but will shift to cheaper lines. One from Valparaiso, Ind., said he not only was cutting the number of units he'll buy, but is paying his dollar expenditures by 5% to 15% because of strikes in his town and anticipated consumer resistance to higher prices.

11,000 Retailers Attend
The giant four-day fair, only national industry-wide show where all types of footwear in every price range are displayed, drew 11,000 retailers and 600 manufacturers. The retailers usually place orders for about 30% of their spring line at the show, and add the rest in the following weeks.

The two general shoe price hikes since Korea, which have lifted wholesale prices about 50 cents to $1 a pair, have only begun to show up at the retail level in the past month. Retailers don't like the reaction. And they are downright unhappy about a further 10% to 15% rise which manufacturers say is ahead.

William J. Nissen, owner of Nissen's Shoe Co. in Oklahoma City, and a director of the National Shoe Retailers Association, reported a mild buyers strike since his store increased some prices. Sales dropped about 15%.

"Sale items pulled people into the store, where style offerings didn't," he said. "Many people are still bogged down with payments on hard goods bought in anticipation of shortages. We would welcome price controls."

Sales Dive Feared

"If we throw another increase at the consumer now, sales will really take a dive," said W. E. Swan of Mertons Shoe Co. in Rockford, Ill. Mr. Swan visited the fair just to compare lines and get an idea of price trends. He indicated the order he'll place in the next ten days will equal last year's in dollar volume but not in units.

Good Evening . . .

By DREW PEARSON
THE CLOSER RACE—Currently Michigan political parties are in a tizzy over the question of the gubernatorial election. Who was elected governor? Is it Williams or is it Kelly?

There may be some individuals who will point to the result of the balloting and question whether it is important to vote. If this is the kind of a muddle that results, a few votes more or less would make no difference, they say.

Yet votes do count, as we pointed out in a pre-election column. And in that column we mentioned that Rutherford B. Hayes was elected president on the basis of a one-vote majority in the electoral college. That was back in 1876 and perhaps it will prove interesting to recount it briefly.

Hayes, Republican, and his managers claimed victories at the polls in three solid-South Democratic states where U. S. troops had been dispatched to protect Negro voters from the Ku-Klux-Klan.

Samuel J. Tilden, Democrat, and his managers claimed a victory in the electoral college, despite the Hayes one-vote majority.

A compromise was reached when the Republicans agreed to withdraw troops from the Democratic South if the Democrats would give up all claims to the presidency.

BRINGING THE NEWS—It was only a few days before the inauguration that part of the nation knew Hayes was victorious and would be proclaimed president.

But it was not until the spring of 1877 that the folks at Fayette in Delta county were informed of the outcome. Situated far from Escanaba on Big Bay de Noc, Fayette was off the beaten path of even the slow-moving communication of those days.

Anxious to know whether Tilden or Hayes had been proclaimed president, the people of Fayette made up a purse of money and offered it to any man of the community who would attempt the crossing of the ice to Escanaba to bring the news.

The late John McColl, a name well remembered in the county to this day, offered to make the trip.

He selected a light pony and sleigh and set out over the thin ice that covered Big Bay de Noc. Peninsula Point was his goal to the west, but thin ice made it necessary to head farther south. Many times the pony would spread its front feet wide and come to an abrupt halt, warning that dangerously thin ice or open water lay ahead.

McColl came out on the shore south of Escanaba. Reaching the city he learned the news of Hayes inauguration and the following day returned to Fayette.

CONFUSING—If the people at Fayette in 1877 were slow in receiving the name of the winner in the presidential election, folks in 1950 are daily informed on the progress of the vote-race for Michigan governor.

That this information is not conclusive and only tends to confuse them still more is beside the point. First Kelly is ahead, then Williams. The final result will not be known until the official vote is reported—or until a recount is completed.

NO MANDATE—Whatever the outcome of the Kelly-Williams race, neither will be able to say they have received "a mandate" from the people. The winner's majority will be so slight that the new governor will be unable to point with pride or even consider his election with anything but considerable hesitation.

But there will be no such hesitation on the part of Republicans elected to other state offices. The majorities in some instances were not great—but substantial enough to warrant a pardonable pride in their victory at the polls.

Writers of history have declared that Rutherford B. Hayes was elected "because the Democrats first tried to steal the election, and the Republicans turned right around and stole it back again."

It will not be so in Michigan in 1950, for the Democrats and the Republicans have stolen nothing from the other. It is an unusual case of a tie (or nearly tie) vote of the electorate.

Witch Doctor Goes To Jail

Was Caught Selling Cure-All Remedy

By ROBERT C. RUARK
MEMPHIS—A real gone trial just ended here, with a jail sentence for Dr. Samuel Shokunbi, a real gone witch doctor from the Yoruba section of Nigeria, Africa, with tribal scars on his cheeks to prove that he went to Heidelberg, or something. I remember exactly what.

Dr. Sam just pulled nine years in the old clinkeroo, which I think is a shame. All he had been doing was antagonizing the pure food and drug boys by selling some tinctures of dried newts' livers for the purpose of sprouting fresh hair and curing what ails you, while occasionally performing scientific experiments in the dark of the moon. For that they shove him in the jug, though many a witness testified they felt better after a "Tree of Life" or "Asthma Aid."

Although Dr. Shokunbi has done a small stretch, before, for playing too fast and loose with the medical profession and the fraud laws, it seems a shame that in this epoch a witch doctor should be burnt at the governmental stake when so many of his contemporaries are getting rich. I think here of "scalp food," a hair growing tonic from whose manufacture the doc was enjoined sharply to cease or desist. It cannot possibly be less effective than the other remedies for glossy skull that are so frantically advertised with testimonials appended.

He's A Fraud
Most of the witch doctor's pet recipes he said, were culled less from the Congo than from a dog-eared volume compiled by a Dr. Culpeper of England, who kicked off in 1640. That was a long time ago, when a man took a short of wolfbane extract for the miseries in the absence of expensive physicians who still prescribe a short of wolfbane extract for the miseries. I recall that a presently disguised potion ain't nothing at all more than that weary old witch's stand-by, deadly nightshade.

Of course Dr. Shokunbi is a fraud, although he actually seems to have been born in Africa, but I doubt he is a greater fraud than a great many of his licensed confreres. He told people, by propaganda, that he was helping them. A great many said he had helped them. That is as rough a definition of modern psychiatry as I have whopped up lately.

Dr. Shokunbi agitated weird brews in a sinister-looking caldron in the back room, and served up the distillations of same to a select number of ailing people who had money. I do not believe that this is a violation of modern medical science if modern medical science will allow a patient to stretch at full length for years, on a couch, while the witch doctor with the pince-nez enjoins him to reach 'way back into his subconscious to recall whether or not he had an early, boyish antipathy to water-nikes.

Wore Bag Around Neck
Also, I am not inclined to knock herbal medicine, since I once wore an asafetida bag around my neck as a child and thereby avoided colds, since asafetida smells so bad it keeps people with colds away from you. Much can be said of the curative powers of garlic, and as I remember it the antihobdies such as penicillin can't notin' but ordinary mold, while something called quinine comes from bark. In a section of the nation which worships cure-all brews I do not see how they can criticize "Tree of Life" and "Nervine."

To keep the American Medical Association off my back I will dip off a ringing endorsement of surgery and aspirin, but I sure do hate to see the powers gang up on a contemporary. Anybody in his right mind knows of the efficacy of the rabbit's foot and of High John the Conqueror powders when one wishes to ward off the demons of the night. Everyone knows that psychiatric suggestion is here to stay, and that half the cure of anything save cancer and traffic accident consists merely of summoning the sawbones. I hope they don't treat old Doc. Shokunbi too rough, because I would like to consult him pretty soon. I been wheezing something terrible in the morning, and my hair is falling out. I can skip "Tree of Life," but that "scalp food" deal sounds just fine.

PROTECTS JET ENGINES

DAYTON, Ohio—(AP)—The Air Force has developed a sort of catcher's mask to protect jet engines from being hit in the mouth by stones, shell cases and other metal. The device is a grill which can be raised or lowered by the pilot. It would be in "up" position during takeoff and landing, retracted during flight except in combat, when the grill would catch or deflect stray cartridges. Flying metal objects are a serious hazard for some types for jet engines, where the air flows directly into the compressor wheel.

Prompt First Aid

LAST FOR FIRST AID

CHAMPAIGN, Ill.—(AP)—A rural school bus driver walked into the Champaign county Red Cross office just before the 1950 fall classes began. He said he had found a reminder to visit the office on his desk but could not remember why. Manager Walt Dinges dug into the files and said: "You were to come here to take a first aid course, but the course isn't being offered this year. The notice was sent to you for the course we had in 1949."

Gay Note in Bad Weather

These stormy weather foot fashions are designed to cope with any problem produced by blustery days. The rubber boots (above) are fleece-lined, have electrified shearing trim. New, lightweight low boots (upper right) fit over many heel heights. Velvet foot-warmers (right center) come in colors. These hounds-tooth check toe rubbers (lower right) slip on and off easily, pack in small space.

NEW YORK (NEA)—Looking pretty on a stormy day is a miracle easier to achieve since the advent of stormy weather fashions which combine good looks with practicality.

We've been happily without the four-buckle overshoe for many years. And each year now, new designs in blustery weather footwear appear, providing women with a whole wardrobe of attractive, practical foot fashions.

Fleece-lined rubber boots are a must for cold, wet weather. One pair, with electrified shearing trim around the top and on the vamp, can be worn over many heel heights. Because they close with an easy lacing, they have the carriage boot look.

For rainy days, lightweight rubber boots in pepper green or red meet the challenge of mud puddles. With a gay, red net lining and a slide fastener, these boots are easy to slip over shoes with almost any heel height.

For snow and sleet, velvet foot-warmers in the form of boots with a lamb's wool lining are ideal. These boots have an electrified shearing cuff for added protection and warmth. They come in colors as well as black and brown.

A light footnote for gray and rainy days is found in toe rubbers which slip on and off easily and other shoes easily. In a hounds-tooth check and in colors, these rubbers are easily tucked into a small space in a handbag, ready for rainy day emergency.

Battered German Port Makes Rapid Recovery

Germany's ancient "Rome of the North" is making a determined bid for a prominent postwar role in Europe's economic life.

The vitality of Bremen in recovering from the saturation bombing of the Allies during World War II comes as no surprise, however, to students of the city's history, notes the National Geographic Society.

From the time of its founding on the Weser River in the 8th century to the present, Bremen has been racked by wars, insurrections, and revolutions. Its buildings have been plundered and burned countless times; generations of its citizens have been put to the sword. Yet the life force of the city has survived each disaster to bring it to a 20th century position among the top shipping and commercial cities of northern Europe.

At the beginning of 1950, Bremen, with its 400,000 residents under American Zone direction, was being served by 80 cargo lines reaching to market centers throughout the world. Although the port recently handled more tonnage in one day than on any previous day in its history, a rapid expansion of facilities continues. Warehouses and factories are being constructed and a grain elevator, reported Europe's largest, is nearing completion.

Geography Responsible
Bremen's position on an important, navigable river, just 46 miles from the North Sea, is largely responsible for its well-nigh indestructible character. The city's first citizens—Saxons of the Chauken (Chauci) tribe—are said to have selected the site because it was accessible to the sea yet far enough inland to gain some protection from pirates.

By the time Charlemagne sent the first missionary to Christianize the natives in 787, Bremen was already prospering as a market and trading town. In the centuries that followed, the community became a great religious center—a second Rome to the powerful princes of the church who ruled vast estates from their Bremen palaces.

Before the 15th century Bremen had achieved a degree of self-government remarkable for the times. Its elected town council exercised the supreme legislative power in civil and criminal cases. Later, merchant groups gained control of the council but individual enterprise was allowed to flourish and the city, as a member of the Hanseatic League, became rich and influential.

Great War Damage
Before World War II Bremen was considered one of the most beautiful of German cities. Its famous old city hall, rich with artistic treasures, fronted a market place lined with medieval homes of the Hansa merchants, guild-houses and churches. Not far from the old section the visitor could see the great Deschimag shipbuilding yard—birthplace of the luxury liner, Bremen, and biggest producer of the German U-boat.

After the last bombs fell in the spring of 1945 Bremen appeared to be reduced to shambles. The clean-up and repair job was so large that authorities at first estimated it would take from 20 to 30 years to rebuild the city to its prewar level.

Winterized Auto Tire Not As Good As Chain, Safety Council Says

CHICAGO—(AP)—The new winterized automobile tires are better than conventional tires on ice but not as effective as tire chains, the National Safety Council reported. The council said this was shown in tests early this year on the frozen surface of Pine Lake, near Clintonville, Wis., conducted by the council's committee on winter driving hazards.

Ross G. Wilcox, council traffic engineer and director of the project said the improvement over conventional tires is "not great enough to warrant less care of the elimination of tire chains when driving under severe snow and ice conditions."

He said the tests showed: The best performing winterized tire tested stopped on glare ice from a speed of 20 miles an hour in an average of 141 feet. Conventional tires required an average of 209 feet. However conventional tires with chains stopped in 77 feet.

Winterized tires are of various types, some using hard materials imbedded in the rubber, some with the tire surfaces lacerated and others having extra deep treads or lugs.

Fur Flies In Alaska With Trapper Joe In Middle Of Buyer War

ANCHORAGE, Alaska.—(P)—Joe Noogachik, Big Wasp and Wasp Snowball are in for a tough time on the traplines this winter. With scores of other Eskimo trappers in Western Alaska, they have found themselves right in the middle of a fight between fur buyers.

The trouble stems from a price war between traders and fur buyers living in the wilderness, and big mail order firms "outside" which are paying more for furs and buying them sight unseen. It's still too early to tell who is winning, but Wassilie Snowball and his friends will have to pay in pelts no matter what the outcome.

Picture Changes

Up until a few years ago things were more or less serene. In the summer the Eskimo trappers fished for a living or worked in the canneries for their groceries.

Come winter time they went to the white trader at Bethel or Dillingham or Holy Cross and bought some new traps. If they didn't have the dough the trader would grubstake them, giving them supplies on credit and counting on a good trapping season to bring in a profit.

"Why, I've got $37,000 in credit on my books," laments a Dillingham trader. "With mail order houses offering more money for the furs than I can afford to pay, I'm going broke."

In the good old days (before mail orders) the trappers thronged to little villages like Ugashik, Akiak and Bethel with their furs. There they went from one trader to another.

Wassilie Snowball would unpack his bundle of Beaver and other pelts and say, "how much?" The trader would make a face, look down his nose at the furs and murmur, "two hundred dollars."

"Umph!" Wassilie would reply, and go to the next fur buyer down the street.

If the second fur buyer could offer ten dollars more the sale was closed. Wassilie took his cash, paid off the trader who had grubstaked him and went home to his squaw.

"It was a fine old competitive spirit," declares C. E. Reed, who operated a store at Dillingham.

Now things have changed. Many Eskimos have begun mailing their furs to the big money order companies in the states. Airmail being what it is they soon have their checks in hand.

Local traders have resorted to a new strategy. When Wassilie Snowball or another trapper turns up to cash his check the trader tells him nothing doing.

"No good?" queries the Eskimo. "Sure, it's good. Send it to the mail order company and let them cash it for you," the trader reports.

After a few such experiences the hapless trapper is happy to deal with the trader on the old competitive scale, if he can get credit for the winter.

The trader, who has to pay high air freight costs on the merchandise and supplies flown into his remote home must make a higher profit on the furs to get by.

The outside mail order firm has no such problem. But if they want western Alaska pelts they may have to dispense with checks and send the Eskimos hard cash for their furs.

More important to Wassilie Snowball than high prices is his winter grubstake. That's one thing he can't eat by mail, no matter how many beaver he traps.

LOOK SHARP!—Justine Page, of Washington, D. C., displays a new poster being issued by the FBI. Signed by J. Edgar Hoover, the poster calls upon all law enforcement agencies, patriotic organizations and YOU to report information relative to espionage, sabotage and subversion. It bids you: "Be alert. A watchful citizen can save many American lives." But cautions: "Report only facts. Avoid repeating malicious gossip or idle rumors."

Ralph D. Coplan Plays In Movie

'Halls Of Montezuma' Tells Marines Story

The Marine Corps unit to which Captain Ralph D. Coplan, Escanaba, is assigned, the 323rd Marine Fighter Squadron, First Marine Air Wing, actually took part in the filming of Twentieth Century-Fox's newest technicolor motion picture, "Halls of Montezuma."

The film, which stars Richard Widmark, is an intimate and personal story of a group of fighting Leathernecks, their hopes, fears and the spark of courage that keeps them fighting when all seems hopelessly lost.

A highlight of the film is the First Air Wing's support for the amphibious landing and land operations of the First Marine Division. It is significant that immediately after the film was completed, units from the First Air Wing and First Marine Division were ordered to Korea.

Significant, too, is the dedicatory message at the opening of the film: "To the United States Marine Corps—This story is dedicated in gratitude for its help in making it possible; but most of all for its stalwart defense of all we hold dear to our lives, our people and our future."

"Halls of Montezuma" is scheduled to be released nationally in January.

GOVERNOR FAVORS BEARDS—LUCKNOW, India.—(P)—The governor of Uttar Pradesh state threatens to start a "grow more beard" campaign if the razor blade prices do not come down.

Addressing a traders' conference here recently, Governor Sir Homy Mody warned the businessmen that he himself would go from door to door urging them to grow beards until profiteering on razor blades was stopped.

Babson Invests In Drug Stocks

Fare Well In Lean And Fat Years

By ROGER W. BABSON

BABSON PARK, Mass.—In view of a report in The Commercial and Financial Chronicle, America's leading business weekly, that I have recently been putting my hard-earned pennies in a certain drug stock, many inquiries have come to me asking the reasons. Hence, this week let me give ten reasons therefor.

(1) Drug stocks fare well both in times of peace and war. In these uncertain days, when our country is "betwixt and between," the wise investor will not gamble on either peace or war. He will invest his savings in an industry which will be safe in either case.

(2) Some great new discoveries which may protect our families against polio, arthritis and perhaps cancer are "on the way." As these come along drug stocks should boom as television and electronic stocks boomed last year.

(3) The chemists and pharmacists of drug companies are given especial consideration in connection with labor laws and perhaps the draft itself. They are recognized as important workers and entitled to such exemptions from rules and regulations as are possible to give.

(4) Drug stores are permitted by law to be open any number of hours per day and seven days a week including Sunday and holidays. As the modern stores have lunch counters, this long opening period is a public convenience as well as necessity.

(5) Drug stores usually have the choicest locations in a city, at corners, or adjoining bus stations or at otherwise frequented localities. Instead of owning the property, they rent so as to be able to move as the trading areas of the city change.

(6) Drug companies are constantly increasing their lines of merchandise which is no longer limited to sick-room needs. From electric heating pads and gadgets for warming baby's milk, modern drug stores now carry most all home electric appliances and in addition—an unlimited variety of household supplies.

(7) The public likes to buy at drug stores whatever these stores carry, both on account of the higher quality of the merchandise and the intelligence of the sales clerks. For several reasons the drug industry insists upon higher standards for their employees than any other group.

(8) Earnings of drug stocks are now temporarily depressed due to the industry's overexpansion during the past five years and the need of new capital to pay therefor. This fact should now make such stocks more attractive to the wise investor than other stocks which are, at the moment, very popular.

(9) Drug companies, like other good merchandising corporations are especially good hedges against inflation. The capital of such companies is almost wholly invested in commodities which rise in price as the purchasing power of the dollar increases.

(10) There is also another personal reason for my investing in drug stocks. I have been most successful when investing in stocks of companies which are saving life or property and thus performing a national service. Certainly, the drug industry is both saving lives and improving the health and happiness of every community.

I even look forward to the time when humbly-minded persons who now seek positions in social service, or in educational fields, or even in church work will see the great opportunity for helping others by serving in a high grade drug laboratory or store. When this time comes it should give the industry a very high standing which should result in a much greater volume of sales at a larger margin of profit.

Just a word regarding merchandise stocks in general. I believe that most "store stocks" are preferable to "manufacturing stocks". I hope to see the Dow-Jones Industrial Averages divided between these two groups. Investors will be greatly surprised when this is done. Finally—for several reasons—I prefer the "chains" to the large department

Rival Dog Food Holds Line; No Price Increase

CHICAGO, November 13—Housewives can't buy much with a dime today, but when it comes to Rival Dog Food, the little ten cent piece still looks like its old self. The makers of Rival are holding the line on price, in spite of the fact that all the elements that go into its manufacture have increased in cost. Since dog food is an important item with millions of dog owners, it is no wonder that so many have expressed their appreciation to the Rival Packing Company for maintaining its 10c price for the full pound can, by buying in ever-increasing quantities.

Food Value, Quality Unchanged

In announcing its intention to hold the price line, the Rival Packing Company stresses the fact that the high quality of Rival remains unchanged. The same rigid standards are applied in checking the purity and food value of every ingredient that goes into Rival Dog Food. "The secret of maintaining price and quality, when manufacturing costs are rising," state Rival officials "is large volume. America's dog owners have made that possible, by purchasing Rival at a record-breaking pace."

Production Capacity Increased

With demand for Rival Dog Food growing, it has been necessary to add to Rival's manufacturing capacity. As a result, Rival Packing Company is now constructing additional plant facilities which will greatly increase production.

Geiger Counter Sales Increase

NEW YORK.—(P)—Across the counter Geiger Counter sales are on the increase, says The Radiac Co. of New York.

All types of people from all walks of life are responsible for this new interest. This situation closely parallels the extensive coverage given by the press and radio to the Atomic Energy Commission's book "The Effects of Atomic Weapons". But when questioned, only a small number of the purchasers admitted fear of an atomic attack as their motivating cause. Most stated only a desire to do a bit of uranium prospecting on their vacation.

Local Matron Dies Saturday

Funeral Wednesday
For Mrs. D. Gouin

Mrs. Denny Gouin, 58, died at 11:25 a. m. Saturday at the family home, 339 Schoolcraft avenue, following an illness of several months.

She was born Sept. 6, 1892, in Manistique and spent most of her life here. She was married to Denny Gouin here on August 4, 1934. Her maiden name was Mildred Harmon.

She was a member of St. Francis de Sales church and of St. Anne's Altar Society.

She is survived by her husband; one daughter, Mrs. Clara Fiset, of Manistique; and two grandchildren.

Funeral services will be held at 8 o'clock Wednesday morning from St. Francis de Sales church, with Rev. F. M. Scheringer officiating. Burial will take place in Lakeview cemetery under the direction of the Morton funeral home.

Response Poor In First Week of Scout Campaign; Drive To Be Continued

Discouraged over the poor response to the annual Boy and Girl Scout drive here this week, chairmen in charge of the campaign have decided to extend the solicitation for another week, it was reported today by Rev. Paul Sobel, local Boy Scout commissioner.

With a goal of $2,700 set as the minimum to meet Boy and Girl Scout requirements in the city during the coming year, total collections during the first week amounted to only $800.

May Curtail Program

If all donors to the Scouting program here respond in the same manner as those already reported, local Scout organizations can expect little more than $1-100 when all solicitors have completed their work, the Scout commissioner said.

This would not be enough funds to carry on a Scouting program in the community, Rev. Sobel said. Girl Scout activities would be curtailed to little or nothing, with no funds at all for summer camp.

The Boy Scout organization, with such limited local support, would continue to be a "parasite" in the Red Buck council, drawing money from other Red Buck communities to make up for the lack of Manistique support, he said. This has been the case for the past four years, and it looks again like Manistique Boy Scouting is going to find it necessary to rely on the generosity of contributors in other communities, he stated.

4c Donation

Of the $800 already collected, about half of it has been contributed by industries. Some business firms gave generously but many gave nothing at all or as little as one dollar. Residential contributions have been averaging between 15 and 25 cents, he reported, and one contributor gave four cents.

Obviously local Boy and Girl Scouting cannot be financed by such meager gifts, the commissioner said.

It is hoped that some contributors will increase their donation during the second week of the campaign, and that others who turned down the solicitors will reconsider and give a little to the Scout program, Rev. Sobel declared.

IN MEMORIAM

In loving memory of our beloved husband and father, Edward Generau, who passed away two years ago Tuesday.

Two years have passed since that sad day.

The one we loved was called away.

God took him home, it was His will.

Put in our hearts he liveth still.

Memories are treasures no one can steal.

Death leaves a heartache no one can heal.

Some will forget him, now that he is gone.

We shall remember, no matter how long.

The memory of those happy days we were all together.

One precious to our hearts has gone.

The voice we loved is stilled.

The place made vacant in our home

Can never more be filled.

Sadly missed by his wife and children,

The injured were Don Springer and Tony Weber, of Manistique, and Roger Moley, of Highwood, Ill., driver of the car. All three are 19 years of age.

They were given medical treatment at their homes for cuts and bruises.

Moley also was given a ticket by state police for reckless driving. The accident occurred at a sharp turn on old U.S. 2 west of the Cooks school, which, according to state police, Moley approached too fast. The car was damaged to the extent of $350.

Need Help of Creator To Solve Problems Says Armistice Day Speaker

Assistance of our Creator will have to be called upon if we are to alleviate the chaotic world conditions that exist and have peace, was the belief expressed by Atty Robert LeMire, Escanaba, speaking at an observance of the 32nd anniversary of the armistice of World War I held Saturday evening in the Legion hall.

The observance was arranged by August Mattson Post, American Legion, and the Legion Auxiliary. Mrs. William Klein served as chairman.

An excellent turkey dinner was served following an invocation of O'Neil D'Amour, post chaplain. Wallace Cameron was toastmaster.

After the dinner, a male quartet composed of Lowell Sundstrom, Kenny Thompson, Art Jensen and Ernie Peterson, Escanaba, presented a group of selections and Mrs. Oliver Gabrielson, French war bride, presided at a candle-lighting service as names of the war dead of World Wars I and II were read by H. J. Skogquist. A minute's silent tribute followed.

The speaker of the evening said that without divine aid he believed there was little chance of solving the problems that beset us today. He said he based his belief on the fact that the principles upon which this nation is founded and the principles of the Communists are diametrically opposed.

To prove this he pointed out that in the preamble of the Constitution of the United States the existence of a Lord or creator is acknowledged by the words "We do hereby acknowledge the Creator with certain inalienable rights" whereas Communism is based on atheism which denies the existence of a supreme being.

Because of this there is little possibility of reconciling the two principles, unless we have assistance of our Creator, Atty LeMire said.

Bierman Quits At Minnesota

Spilling The Dope

By Charlie Larson

The story on the sport page the other day that a four team hockey league had been organized caused local puck enthusiasts to wonder whether Escanaba had been bypassed.

Word we have is that Escanaba still is in the hockey picture. Local hockey promoters have been informed that any time Escanaba is ready with a team the hockey league will be glad to have the entry. Room will be made for Escanaba, we are told.

Bob Biolo of the Marquette Mining Journal writes on the subject:

"We're glad to see a hockey league organized . . . More pleased because there are two Copper Country sextets in the circuit . . . But, how about the Soo? . . . It simply won't seem right without a Look City six in the loop . . . A Sault team has never—at least not in recent years—wound up in last place (and usually was near the top) . . . A Soo team always has been a top-notch drawing card, too . . .

"There's talk of an Escanaba entry in the league . . . That, to put it mildly, would be swell . . . A four team loop is all right, but it gets tiresome seeing only three opposing teams play . . . In our opinion, league officers should make every effort to induce a Delta entry and also to persuade a Soo team to join the circuit . . . Escanaba would be a 'natural' in the league—what a rival for Marquette!"

Rams Crush Packers, 45-14

MILWAUKEE — (P) — The Los Angeles Rams rode easily into the National division leadership of the National football league Sunday, crushing the Green Bay Packers, 45-14, as the Chicago Bears defeated the New York Yanks at Chicago.

The Rams converted four Green Bay errors into touchdowns, another into a field goal and added a pair of scores on their own in gaining their seventh victory in nine league starts.

Green Bay's touchdowns came in the final minutes on passes from Tobin Rote to Larry Coutre and Al Baldwin as most of the 20-456 fans were filling out of the State Fair park in near-freezing cold. The Packers slapped the shackles on Norm Van Brocklin, the league's top passer, limiting him to one completion in 11 pitches, that for a touchdown, but Bob Waterfield took up the slack with a pair of scoring passes and Glenn Davis tossed another in the shell cking.

The Rams completed 15 of 39 passes for 283 yards. Rote connected on 11 of 40 for 200 yards and the lone Packer scores.

Los Angeles . . . 3 21 14 7-45
Green Bay . . . 3 0 0 14-14

Former Teammate Of Rockne Passes

INDIANAPOLIS — (P) — Mayor Albert G. Feeney, 58, star football player with the late Knute Rockne at Notre Dame, died of a heart attack yesterday. He collapsed a few minutes after finishing a speech at a Catholic breakfast.

A Democrat, he was known as the father of the merit system in the Indiana state police department under former Gov. Paul V. McNutt.

Pro Standings All Scrambled Up

NEW YORK — (P) — With one month of the season remaining, the National football league found itself all scrambled up today with no less than six teams in a red hot battle for championship honors.

The won and lost figures in both divisions are exactly the same for the leaders after Sunday's six-game program. Cleveland's Browns still are leading the American conference, while the Los Angeles Rams displaced the New York Yanks atop the National group.

If the Rams want to stay in the lead, they've got a tough job next Sunday in the league's big game, when they meet New York at Yankee stadium.

Los Angeles eased into first place by blasting the Green Bay Packers, 45-14, at Milwaukee while the Bears tamed New York's Yanks before 50,103 cheering fans

MINNEAPOLIS — (P) — Bernie Bierman today resigned as head football coach at the University of Minnesota. He asked to be relieved at the end of the present year.

Bierman said he had had the move in mind for some time and that he felt this was "as good a Bernie Bierman time as any."

He said the move was not prompted by the fact the current Gopher football team has failed to win a game thus far this year. He said that since World War II the coaching job had been particularly difficult.

Bierman added that he had no plans for the future and that he was not entertaining any offer of a coaching job at this time.

Athletic Director Ike Armstrong said "Bierman could stay on in the athletic department in any capacity he wishes" and "we hope he will remain."

Bierman's overall coaching record includes 162 victories, 57 losses and eleven ties.

In the 18 years he has coached in Minnesota his teams have won 92 games, lost 34 and tied six. The current team has lost six games and tied one for the poorest showing of any Bierman-coached squad.

Green Bay's touchdowns came in the final minutes on passes from Tobin Rote to Larry Coutre and Al Baldwin as most of the 20-456 fans were filling out of the State Fair park in near-freezing cold. The Packers slapped the shackles on Norm Van Brocklin, the league's top passer, limiting him to one completion in 11 pitches, that for a touchdown, but Bob Waterfield took up the slack with a pair of scoring passes and Glenn Davis tossed another in the shell cking.

The Rams completed 15 of 39 passes for 283 yards. Rote connected on 11 of 40 for 200 yards and the lone Packer scores.

Los Angeles . . . 3 21 14 7-45
Green Bay . . . 3 0 0 14-14

Besides keeping the home ice streak going, the game they won before 12,991 fans:

1—Was Detroit's seventh game straight without defeat, both home and away.

2—Was the second shutout by rookie Goalie Terry Sawchuk, who just missed another shutout the night before at Toronto. He made 22 saves.

3—Was Montreal's eighth contest in a row without a victory.

The rough battle was marked by 13 penalties. Detroit rammed home two goals while the losers were short-handed.

The Canadiens' Glen Harmon had 11 stitches taken in a severe cut over his left eye. Detroit's Jim Mc Fadden needed three stitches to close a cut on his chin.

Michigan now with a 2-1-1 record.

Grid Banquet Nov. 30 At Bethany Lutheran

The annual Chamber of Commerce Recognition football banquet for Escanaba and St. Joseph high school gridgers will be held at the Bethany Lutheran church parlors on Thursday night, Nov. 30, at 6:30 o'clock.

Choice of the site was made this morning by a committee headed by Chairman Claude Tobin, which met at the Chamber office.

As previously announced, speaker will be Lloyd Larson, veteran Big Ten football official and Milwaukee Sentinel sports editor. Larson is rated as one of the finest after dinner speakers in the Midwest.

Choice of the toastmaster will be made later, Tobin said.

Members of the Escanaba and St. Joseph teams and their coaches will be guests at the banquet.

Grandelius Sparks MSC Win Over Gophers, 27-0

EAST LANSING — (P) — Sizzling Sonny Grandelius roared a few notches closer to All-American honors Saturday as his Michigan State Spartans clubbed the Minnesota Gophers, 27-0.

The 195-pound left halfback, who leads the Spartans "city slicker" attack, did just about everything in the book in helping subdue the ponderous Gophers.

He rushed for 81 yards in 18 tries, including one touchdown; attempted two passes and hit on both for 42 yards and another marker; caught two passes himself for nine yards; and also turned in a 37-yard punt.

As a blocking back, he repeatedly spilled the Gopher opposition, helping in the success of the other Spartan runners and passers.

For the season, he now has gained 950 yards in 144 carries, and has scored 12 touchdowns for 72 points. He has gained more yards than all the MSC opposition together, and his scoring total is a school record set by George Guerre in 1947.

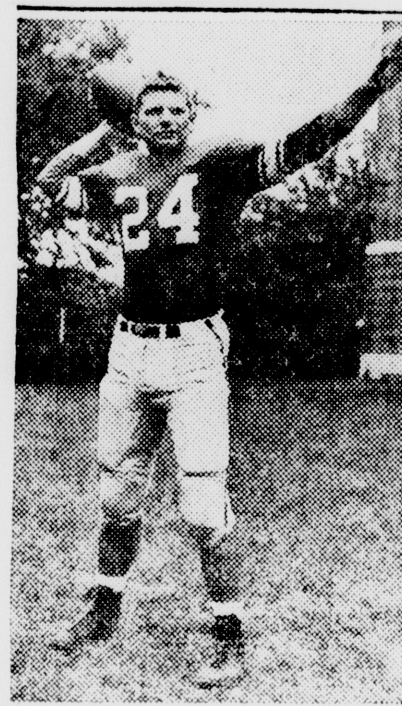

Curiously enough, Grandelius was not the best back on the field — rushing-wise — Saturday. That honor went to Fullback LeRoy Crane, a twisting terror up the middle with 96 yards and a touchdown for 16 tries.

Vince Pisano, the fast-developing right half, carried 16 times for gains of 69 yards and one touchdown. Al Dorow, the cagey quarterback, took one of Grandelius' passes to round out the scoring.

From a team point of view, the Michigan State defensive line looked especially sharp, consistently outjumping the bulkier Gopher forwards and smearing their backs.

The outstanding performances, probably, were by Deane Thomas, a fury of a tackle, and ends Dorne Dibble and Jimmy King, who continually made the Minnesota backfield a five-man affair.

The game wound up the home season for the Spartans, who journey to Pittsburgh this week for the season finale. The Panthers have won only one game in seven starts.

Illini, Bucks Slated For Classic

CHICAGO — (P) — A rose bowl and a title-bound limited will clash head-on in a climatic Big Ten football battle between Illinois and Ohio State at Champaign, Ill., Saturday.

Whichever of these bristling aggregations, both ranked among the top ten in the AP national poll, plows through to victory will have clear track to one of two shining rewards.

For Ohio State, unbeaten in five league starts and rated second in the AP poll, a triumph will sew up a conference crown.

For Illinois, the Buckeyes still have to meet Michigan, Ohio State, champion or not, cannot return to the Rose bowl because the Bucks were there last Jan. 2.

For Illinois, with a 3-1 record, an upset of the bountiful Bucks probably will clinch a Rose bowl bid, elbowing aside Pasadena-scented Wisconsin (4-2) whose sole loop game left is against winless Minnesota Nov. 25.

It also follows that win for Coach Ray Eliot's boys over Ohio State would scramble the title picture for a furious final-round showdown the next Saturday.

If Ohio State should lose to both Illinois and Michigan, and Illinois conquers Northwestern Nov. 25, the Illini would not only be the first Big Ten team to return to the Rose bowl in the current series, but also own the conference championship.

In that case, Illinois would have a final 5-1 record for an .833 percentage against Ohio State's 5-2 for .714. Illinois plays only six conference games against seven each for Ohio State and Wisconsin.

Michigan now with a 2-1-1 record.

Escanaba will make a bid to join the Upper Peninsula hockey league, now a four team circuit.

That was decided here yesterday at a meeting of local hockey enthusiasts and six veteran hockey players from the Copper Country, who are interested in playing for Escanaba.

Escanaba's bid will be submitted at the next league meeting Nov. 26 at Marquette, when the organization will be completed. At present, the league members are Marquette, Portage Lake (Houghton and Hancock), Calumet and Eagle River, Wis.

Calumet players who attended the meeting yesterday included Frank (Puppy) Gressick, defenseman; John Nichols, defenseman; Reuben Praskie, Jack O'Brien, John Whittaker and Bill Manacol, wings.

The six have indicated interest in playing for Escanaba if jobs can be found for them here.

Delta Potato Men Honored

Guests Of Rotary At Luncheon Today

Delta county potato growers, including 4-H club potato project winners, were honored today at the 8th annual recognition luncheon sponsored by the Escanaba Rotary club at the Delta hotel.

George McIntyre, Lansing, assistant to the commissioner of the Michigan department of agriculture, advised the growers that advertising and other promotion methods in marketing Michigan potatoes must be started on a state-wide program.

"We cannot depend upon the government to buy up our surplus potatoes every year," he declared, adding that he had been informed the government is purchasing additional millions of bushels of the 1950 crop. The answer to the problem is better marketing and advertising, he said.

The Potato Booster contest is a success that has attracted state and national attention to Delta county, McIntyre said.

James Fitzhugh, Rotary president, welcomed the growers to the luncheon. Joseph Lyons, chairman of the club's rural-urban committee, presented Miss Marcella Vandecavey of St. Nicholas, 1950 Delta Potato Show queen.

J. L. Heirman introduced the Delta growers, including Frank Fakies of Cornell, whose record of 780 bushels an acre may set a 1950 state record, and the following: Lewellyn Larson, Danforth; Grey Knaus, Joe Stell, Gerald Stell, Cornell; Jules VanDamme and George Van Damme, St. Nicholas; Harold Woodard, Clayton Ford, Cornell; Adolph Lippens, St. Nicholas; Emil Moser, Danforth; Clarence Sundquist, Bark River; Mel Nyquist, Delta 4-H agent, presented Lowell Stell, U. P. premier 4-H potato champion; Lloyd Branstrom, Bertil and Sander Lamborg Ensign, Billy and Gerald Williamson, North Delta; George McFadden, John Knaus and Billy Woodard of Cornell.

Recreation Leader Is Injured In Fall

Jerome Deloria, city recreation leader, was injured in a fall from a load of wood near his home at Pine Ridge at noon today. He was taken to St. Francis hospital, but the extent of his injuries will not be determined until an x-ray examination is completed.

The large reduction in the 1950 Michigan bean crop can be traced to bacterial blight. Dr. Axel L. Anderson, Michigan State College plant pathologist, says that blight was indirectly responsible for the loss due to weathering this year.

Jumbled Elections Not New In Michigan

Bungling In Vote Bared; Williams Now Holds Lead

DETROIT — (P) — Don't say Michigan's current election mix-up is an unprecedented jumble until you look back into the state's history.

You'll find parallels for nearly every aspect of the confusing and complicated situation.

For instance, although this is the closest gubernatorial race in Michigan history, it is by no means the closest vote for a high state office.

Lost By Two Votes

In 1943, Michigan Supreme Court Justice Bert Chandler lost his bid for re-election by just a state-wide program.

"We cannot depend upon the government to buy up our surplus potatoes every year," he declared, adding that he had been informed the government is purchasing additional millions of bushels of the 1950 crop. The answer to the problem is better marketing and advertising, he said.

The Potato Booster contest is a success that has attracted state and national attention to Delta county, McIntyre said.

James Fitzhugh, Rotary president, welcomed the growers to the luncheon. Joseph Lyons, chairman of the club's rural-urban committee, presented Miss Marcella Vandecavey of St. Nicholas, 1950 Delta Potato Show queen.

The large reduction in the 1950 Michigan bean crop can be traced to bacterial blight. Dr. Axel L. Anderson, Michigan State College plant pathologist, says that blight was indirectly responsible for the loss due to weathering this year.

two votes after more than 300,000 ballots had been counted.

He didn't challenge the count. "It is beneath the dignity of this office," the jurist said, "to ask a recount of the official vote when there is no question of its honesty."

There may be a recount in the Kelly-Williams race, and if there is it will be reminiscent of a similar situation just 20 years ago.

In the Republican governor's primary of 1930, Wilbur M. Brucker defeated Alex J. Groesbeck by 5,000 votes. Groesbeck asked a recount, charging various errors in tabulation.

He paid $2,193 for the new count, but it was estimated to have cost the state $200,000. State police guards accompanied election officials to the auditorium of the Boys' Industrial school in Lansing for the recount.

Every ballot was scrutinized carefully by 100 workers and challengers for the two candidates. But Groesbeck's money went for a lost cause, and the recount confirmed Brucker's victory.

Michigan's first recount of importance goes back more than a century. In 1828, Fr. Gabriel Richard sought re-election as a delegate from the territory of Michigan to Congress, running against two other candidates.

Fatigue Blamed

Austin J. Wing got three votes more than Fr. Richard. The latter did not ask a recount, but charged that "undersheriffs beat over the head his partisans outside the polling places, preventing them from voting."

Then Wing and the other candidate asked the new count. Wing retained his three-vote margin.

The Wayne county confusion this year is much the same story as in 1944. In that presidential vote, countless errors were discovered after it was announced that Republican Thomas E. Dewey had carried the state. More than a month later, the official canvass showed Michigan's 19 electoral votes belonged to the late President Roosevelt.

Election officials then blamed the inaccuracies on inexperience, late hours and fatigue on the part of workers.

There's a familiar ring to that explanation. It cropped up again this time.

State Trooper Hit And Badly Injured In Jam At Straits

MACKINAW CITY, Mich.—(P)—A state trooper was among the casualties as the annual caravan of deer hunters bound for the upper Peninsula began motoring through here this past weekend.

On Sunday the peak of the congestion saw autos lined up for two miles waiting for state ferries to take them from the local docks to St. Ignace in the upper Peninsula.

On Saturday night a state trooper who was directing traffic was struck from behind by an auto at the intersection of US-27 and US-31.

Trooper John H. Benzer, 31, of the Alpena Post was taken to Cheboygan hospital. He suffered a fractured right knee, cuts, and bruises.

State police said the motorist, Clayton C. Kent of Boyne City, continued driving after his car hit the trooper. He was taken into custody and charged with driving while drunk, state police said.

Bay County Farmer's Death By Hanging Found To Be Suicide

BAY CITY—(P)—The puzzling death of farmer Stanley Mychowiak, 61, has been ruled a suicide by Coroner W. A. Trahan.

Coroner Trahan held that Mychowiak attempted to blow himself to bits with dynamite and failing in this, hanged himself from a tree with a barbed wire noose. He ruled out foul play.

Authorities at first doubted that Mychowiak, badly injured by a dynamite blast 1,000 feet from the tree where his body was found, could have dragged himself to the tree.

But in reconstructing what happened, the coroner said it was found that Mychowiak apparently dragged himself from the blast scene to the tree, wrapped a piece of barbed wire about his neck, climbed a fence and tied the other end to a tree limb, then jumped off the fence.

Mychowiak's body was found by a brother, Adam, 46, who was questioned but absolved of any blame.

Vacation Spot Burns On St. Clair River

ALGONAC, Mich.—(P)—The Harzens Island hotel, St. Clair river landmark and vacation spot for close to a century, is in blackened ruins.

Fire believed to have started in defective wiring leveled the 22-room, three-story frame building Saturday night. Loss was estimated at over $40,000 by owners Theodore Haddad and Tony Waked of Detroit.

The flames raged for four hours despite efforts of Algonac, St. Clair Flats and Harzens Island fire departments.

The hotel has attracted countless Detroit visitors since long before the turn of the century.

The 1950 season closed a month ago.

Nobel Physics Prize Awarded

British Cosmic Ray Scientist Wins

STOCKHOLM — (P) — The 1950 Nobel prize in physics was awarded to the British cosmic ray scientist, Prof. Cecil F. Powell, 46.

Powell's political thinking leans to the left, but he denies he is a Communist.

The award was in recognition of his development of a simple photographic method to probe the secrets of the atom nucleus and his highly significant discoveries regarding the mesons — elementary particles believed to be the putty which holds the atom nucleus together.

Dr. Hideki Yukawa, a Japanese now on the staff of Columbia University in New York, won the 1949 physics prize for his theory predicting the existence of the mesons 14 years before.

Powell was the 13th Briton to win the Nobel prize in physics and the 49th British winner in all Nobel prize classifications since the prizes were established 50 years ago under the will of Alfred Nobel, Swedish inventor of dynamite.

This year's physics award is worth $31,715.

Powell, physics professor at Bristol University for 22 years, is one of the vice-presidents of the British peace committee which is staging the Communist-line peace congress at Sheffield, England, next week.

He has denied he is a Communist, telling reporters, "I have no political affiliations." But he declared in a speech at Bristol Wednesday that "it is quite impossible to have a peace movement without the support of the Communists."

The photographs for which he was rewarded today showed tiny atomic explosions which he calls "footprints," and which science calls mesons, one of the most transient forms of matter so far found.

They are named mesons from the Greek word for middle, because they are particles between the electron and proton which are found in atoms.

Congress Runs Washington And Citizens Protest

Korea launched their first counter attack. The House considered a bill to "regulate the running at large of goats in the District of Columbia."

On Sept. 11, Congress had before it the question of an anti-subversive bill. The House found time to pass a bill "regulating the disposal of dead human bodies in the District of Columbia."

On Sept. 13, President Truman asked for "early and favorable" action on a bill that would make Gen. George C. Marshall eligible to be secretary of defense. The Senate passed a bill to preserve the architectural flavor of the Georgetown section of Washington.

Bill Bottled Up

Under the present setup, Congress makes Washington's laws. Commissioners appointed by the president have no responsibility of seeing they're enforced.

Washington citizens don't even name their own — it John L. Lewis will excuse the expression — dogcatcher.

Under the proposed setup, Congress would delegate its authority to an elected district council.

A home rule bill has passed the Senate. It has been bottled up in the House, but a petition has been circulated in an attempt to get action.

So far, 196 members have signed it. That's 22 shy of the 218 needed to force the legislation out on the floor for debate.

No one can say whether enough signatures can be secured. And if the required number do sign, that's still no guarantee there will be time enough left for the bill to be passed before this Congress folds up next month, when all unpassed bills die.

Still, the home rulers are optimistic. The present form of government began in 1874, and they say this is the closest the district has got to the ballot box in 75 years.

Transport Rams Into Mountain; Four Dead At Greenville, S. C.

GREENVILLE, S. C. — (P) — An air force C-52 transport plane crashed into the side of a mountain late Saturday night, carrying the four men aboard to a fiery death.

Deputy Sheriff Waddy Brezeale of nearby Pickens county said "if it had flown 150 feet higher it would have gotten over" the peak.

An investigation of the crash is underway.

First report of the crash came from a hunter who thought he had spotted a forest fire. A forest ranger discovered the smoldering wreckage early Sunday.

The plane was being transferred from Maxwell field, Montgomery, Ala., to the Greenville air base.

Deer Hunting Good

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont.—(P)—Customs officials said today almost 500 deer have been taken into the United States through here this season by American hunters who are enjoying the best hunting in the district's history.

Allied Link-Up Made In Korea; Marines Near Dam

South Korean Seventh Division moved up to bolster the Sixth.

Elements of the U. S. 24th Division advanced up to two miles on the extreme western end of the front, about 18 miles west of Won.

An Eighth Army spokesman said this placed them in the vicinity of Tungsan, four miles northeast of Pakchon and about 60 miles southeast of Sinuiju, entryway for Chinese troops from Manchuria.

Fleets of B-29's ranging back of the fronts hammered again at Sinuiju and set three main supply points aflame with fire bombs.

A spokesman at General MacArthur's Tokyo headquarters said both bridges across the Yalu river from Manchuria to Sinuiju were believed knocked out after Monday's attack.

Enemy Base Blasted

Forty B-29's made the first attack. They loosed 340 tons of incendiaries on Sakchu and Chosan, on the Yalu river northeast of Sinuiju, and on Namsi, communications center between Sinuiju and the northwest front.

Three other communications and supply centers were set aflame Sunday in the B-29 scorched earth raids. The Air Force is methodically burning out Red collection points for men and supplies.

MacArthur's intelligence officer said there had been no information for two days on whether Chinese Communists still are sending reinforcements in large numbers across the Yalu. He said the Chinese appeared to be throwing more strength into the central part of the peninsula between the Changjin reservoir and the Yalu river.

This would place heavy concentrations between the main United Nations forces and Kanggye, Red Korean command center.

Intentions and capabilities of the Chinese forces still are not apparent, the intelligence officer said.

Extension Of Draft To Build Manpower Foreseen By Hershey

CHICAGO — (P) — Maj. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, the nation's selective service director, says America's manpower must serve both the economy and the armed forces.

He said the draft may have to be extended to 18-year-olds and to men older than 25.

Hershey spoke on a Northwestern university radio panel broadcast yesterday by the Mutual Broadcasting System.

Although there are an estimated 8,000,000 men in the 19-26 age group, Hershey said, some 1,000,000 have dependents, another 3,000,000 are veterans and a large proportion of those remaining do not meet physical or mental requirements.
